Description

The PPCA is a coalition of governments, businesses and organisations working to advance the transition from unabated coal power generation to clean energy.

At this session we are bringing together leading regional governments, think tanks, and international organisations who are helping to implement a just energy transition across the globe. They will share insights into how lessons learnt from their experience can support long-term energy planning in Latin America and the Caribbean.

The session will feature representatives from PPCA members the Dominican Republic, Chile and Panama as well as leading think tank E3G, the Organización Latinoamericana de Energía and more.

Including keynote presentations, panel discussions, and interactive Q&A sessions, this roundtable will seek to create a productive dialogue among attendees.
